Couldn't get tix to Pitchfork Music

Festival? Pick among several after-shows to find your favorite fest bands playing at venues around town. We're especially stoked to choose between instrumentalists Here We Go Magic with Brooklyn singer-guitarist Sharon Van Etten and locals A Lull at Schubas (3159 N. Southport Ave. 773-525-2508); and L.A. rockers Best Coast with Candy Claws and Bird Talk at Empty Bottle (1035 N. Western Ave. 773-276-3600). We'll be tempted to stop by Subterranean (2011 W. North Ave.) Sunday to see Jersey surfer popsters Real Estate with Zola Jesus. $12 per show.

When: 10 p.m. Saturday (Best Coast), 10:30 p.m. Saturday (Here We Go Magic), 10:30 p.m. Sunday

Going to the fest? Get our picks for must-see acts plus the full Pitchfork lineup at metromix.com. Keep checking the site for lots of photos and reviews all weekend.

HEAR

The ladies of Lilith

Tickets are still available for the reboot of Lilith Fair (First Midwest Bank Amphitheatre, 19100 Ridgeland Ave., Tinley Park), the Sarah McLachlan-founded traveling festival of mostly female-based artists and bands. This reiteration hasn't proved quite as successful as the original 1997-1999 productions, which is good news for people (not going to Pitchfork) who still want to score access to hear McLachlan, Mary J. Blige, Cat Power, La Roux and other heavy hitters all in one day. Show up early to support local singer-songwriter Katie Todd, who won a contest to open the festival. $41.50-$127.

When: 1 p.m. Saturday

TRIBUNE

SNEAK A peek at 'Transformers 3'

River North

The Michael Bay-directed flick starring Shia LaBeouf is filming on the Mag Mile this weekend, and if the set (above)—a wreck of smashed cars and lifted pavement—is any indication, there's sure to be action. Michigan Avenue between Ontario Street and Wacker Drive will be closed through 5 a.m. Monday. Sidewalks are barricaded, but you still can sneak a glance if you're crafty.

When: Saturday and Sunday

TATTOO Get inked, raise cash

Noble Square

You know you've been thinking about getting that tattoo for a while. Well, here's something to push you over the edge. Red Door Animal Shelter is teaming up with Insight Studios (1062 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-342-4444) to raise money for homeless animals. Stop into the tattoo shop, get a tat or a piercing, and Insight will donate proceeds to the local shelter. The event is walk-in only, and lines are expected, so come prepared with your ink design in mind.

When: Noon-10 p.m. Saturday; noon-8 p.m. Sunday

CHEER Hot dog eaters

Lincoln Park

Nothing says summer like a rousing hot dog-eating contest. Make a stop at Devil Dawgs (2147 N. Sheffield Ave. 773-281-4300) to watch big eaters plow through as many dogs as they can stomach for 50 bucks—and to buy up a dog for yourself. The competition is in conjunction with the 42nd annual Sheffield Garden Walk and Festival (Webster and Sheffield Avenues), combining sweet neighborhood gardens with eats and drinks for sale plus music from Cowboy Mouth (8 p.m. Saturday) and Rusted Root (8 p.m. Sunday). $7-$10 to get into the Garden Walk.

When: 3 p.m. Saturday (dog contest); noon-10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday (Garden Walk)

RAISE A hand for Guinness World Records

River North

It's cooler than a fist bump, less corporate than a handshake and always desirable at sporting events: the high-five. Join members of ComedySportz, who traditionally high-five audiences after every show, as they attempt to break the Guinness World Record for Most High-Fives in One Hour during the Taste of River North (Erie Park, 630 N. Kingsbury St.). The record to beat is 408. $5 suggested donation (Taste of River North).

When: 4 p.m. Sunday (high-five contest); noon-10 p.m. Saturday; 11 a.m.-8 p.m. Sunday (Taste of River North)

Fit, not fat

Training for the marathon? Jogging on the lakefront? So is Connie Reyes, RedEye blogger and first-time marathoner. You can find her blog at redeyechicago.com/missfit. Here is a sample.

Dear biker who felt it necessary to call me a fat a,

I'm so sorry. It was so rude of me to be on your path when you were going for a leisurely bike ride along the lake. I mistakenly thought that the city's path was for everyone, but clearly I was wrong.

I had 11 miles scheduled this weekend and due to the fact that I was lazy, I had not run this week, which left me unprepared. I was not able to keep up with the other bikers. Just because I am running and not biking is no excuse."

ROBOTS TAKE OVER CHICAGO!

OK, not really. But "Transformers 3" will be filming in Chicago through Aug. 19. This weekend, watch out for closures on Michigan Avenue and various parts of the Loop. But what does it look like when Michael Bay's production crew is tearing up downtown Chicago? Resident geek Elliott Serrano is posting photos of the filming on his blog. Parts of lower Manhattan, including the area where the towers fell Sept. 11, 2001, were built over the Hudson River, archeologist Michael Pappalardo told reporters gathered at the site. The ship, Pappalardo said, likely dated back at least 200 years when part of the river was

Dazed & infused

Craving booze with a little more juice? Follow these steps to give your cocktails a personalized kick

By Rich Goldsmith

FOR REDEYE

Tea, jalapeno, bacon—you name the ingredient, and it can be used to add flavor to alcohol.

Sometimes those flavors are spectacular; sometimes they're spectacular failures.

When done right, infused liquors—created by placing ingredients in a container with a spirit for a given amount of time to extract the essential oils and compounds that carry flavors—add complexity, subtlety and nuance to classic cocktails and modern drinks alike.

Not that flavored spirits are anything new. A common boozy treat around the globe, infused liquors have always been around in the U.S., but they really caught the eye of American producers in the mid- to late '90s. Everything from cranberry to lemon and currants went into the mix. Sorority girls across the country were thrilled and mixologists took advantage of the new flavors to invent a huge range of cocktails—most of them ending in “tini.”

Flash forward to 2010, and the ingredients in commercially infused spirits have gotten even more far-fetched. We've gone far beyond honey, lime, coconut and even ginger-flavored liquors to a land where carnivorous cocktail drinkers sip vodka infused with bacon and smoked salmon.

Chicago mixologists such as Nacional 27's Adam Seger, The Drawing Room's Charles Joly and The Violet Hour's Mike Ryan are pushing the limits, making their own bitters, infusing liquors with imaginative flavors and inventing cocktail recipes that would make even the most diabolical mad scientist proud.

And if none of the flavors available in the liquor stores and bars matches your taste, there always is the option to infuse bottles of boozy goodness your own way.

It's pretty simple, and the sky is the limit on the flavors you can create. Big fan of strawberries and kiwi? Mix up a batch of home-made strawberry-kiwi rum. Want to capture summer peaches in a cocktail? Show off your bartending skills by whipping together some peach brandy.

Bartender Kerry Spring of The Exchange whips up The Smoke and Mirror cocktail.

BRIAN J. MOROWCZYNSKI
PHOTOS FOR REDEYE

However, making your own infused spirits isn't quite as simple as dumping a pile of whatever fruits, herbs or spices you want into a bottle of booze. There are three key rules to keep in mind.

Use quality hooch

1 Sure, you could use a 1½-liter bottle of rotgut vodka, but imperfections in the liquor base become more glaring during the infusion process, especially when working with subtle flavors such as tea or lavender.

Less is more

2 The temptation is to put in as much flavor as possible. Don't. Not only will those flavors be overpowering and completely ruin whatever subtleties once were in your liquor of choice, but if you're using fruit, the fruit often will absorb a significant amount of the liquid in trade for its own essence. This leaves you with mildly boozy juice rather than tasty infused spirits.

Have fun with it

3 Figuring out flavors isn't just a thought process, it's also good times. You don't want to waste liquor, but you'll have to experiment a bit to find the ingredients that work for you.

RICH GOLDSMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

DID YOU KNOW?

Some of history's most notable spirits can be considered infusions. Absinthe, gin and limoncello are examples of these noble spirits that have gone through the infusion process and come out the other side far more delicious. As a result, they're responsible for millions of hangovers, inspired pieces of art and drunken hookups.

The Smoke and Mirror cocktail

MIX IT UP

Ready to play mixologist? Here are three recipes—one courtesy of Wicker Park bar The Exchange—to get you started making your own infusions and help you learn some of the techniques you'll need. If you get through these recipes and feel like you're ready for the advanced class, head for Google and type in "Skittles infused vodka." R.G.

Lapsang tea-infused tequila

Master mixologist Peter Vestino developed the cocktail service at The Exchange in Wicker Park, where you'll find The Smoke and Mirror cocktail, a complex mix of flavors combining Casa Noble blanco tequila, lime, egg white and agave nectar. What makes it truly special is the treatment Vestino and his crew give the tequila before it ever makes it into the shaker. He infuses it with Lapsang Souchong tea. This black tea is dried over pine fires, giving it an intriguing smoky flavor to impart to the tequila.

SUPPLIES

- » 750 ml Casa Noble blanco tequila
- » ½ cup Lapsang Souchong tea
- » Fine mesh strainer or colander with cheesecloth
- » Pitcher large enough to hold the tequila

DIRECTIONS

- » Pour the tequila into the pitcher and add tea leaves (put them in a tea ball or bag).
- » The alcohol will draw flavor and color from the leaves very quickly, so an hour is more than enough to draw out all the flavor you need.
- » Strain and pour the tequila back into the bottle for use.

Pineapple-infused vodka

While you can get pineapple vodka off of a liquor store shelf, there is an enormous flavor difference if you make your own. Homemade pineapple-infused vodka is brighter, with far more pronounced pineapple notes and, best of all, no odd chemical flavors. It makes a tasty, summery twist on a martini and pairs well with tonic. Making your own is fairly easy.

- » 2 cups fresh pineapple
- » 750 ml bottle of quality vodka
- » Clean container/pitcher with airtight lid large enough to hold the pineapple and the vodka
- » Fine mesh strainer
- » Coffee filters (optional)

DIRECTIONS

- » Cut the pineapple into large chunks and place in the bottom of the container.
- » Pour the vodka over the pineapple and allow to steep for approximately three days (any longer than that and there are chemical compounds in pineapple that will leech out and turn your delicious liquor into a funky-smelling mess).
- » When it's ready, strain the vodka. It'll be a bit cloudy, but if you line the strainer with coffee filters you'll be left with something that looks just like vodka and tastes like a trip to the tropics.

Bacon-infused bourbon

Bacon makes everything better. That includes alcohol, and especially bourbon, which pairs incredibly well with bacon. The caramel undercurrents act like maple syrup and match nicely with the richness and smoke of the bacon. The whiskey's warm spice brings it all together. It's perfect for summer—a shot or two of the stuff dropped into a chocolate milkshake is about as close to perfection as you can get.

- » 750 ml bottle of good bourbon
- » 1 pound bacon
- » Pitcher with a wide mouth and airtight lid
- » Fine mesh strainer
- » Coffee filters

DIRECTIONS

- » Fry or bake the bacon and reserve all of the grease. Whatever you do, don't burn the meat!
- » Strain the grease through the mesh strainer and allow it to cool. Once cool, pour it into the pitcher along with the bourbon and give the mixture a good stir.
- » Put the whole mess into the freezer for a few hours or overnight. You can pass the time by munching on your pound of bacon.
- » When cold, the grease will float to the top and form a solid cap on the liquid. Pull the solids out and discard, then strain the liquid. It'll keep in the fridge for two to three weeks. You can use this same process on tequila, which makes for a spectacular variation on a bloody mary.

M.I.A.-plus for effort

By Glenn Gamboa

NEWSDAY

M.I.A. could have taken the easy way out. After the international smash "Paper Planes," an artistic and commercial success, all she had to do for her new album was craft "Paper Planes II"—a similar combo of catchy melodies and cleverly disguised political rhetoric—to build on her momentum.

That's not what she did, of course. No LeBroning for her. Instead, M.I.A. made things more challenging. Her new album "Y," which is unpronounceable but stands for her first name "Maya," tries to bridge the gap between her stunning, innovative debut, "Arular," and a mainstream clamoring for a fresh take—musically, lyrically and ideologically—on hip-hop.

Truth be told, she falls a little short most of the time. But the effort still makes for rewarding listening. After all, for M.I.A. the music often is just the jumping-off point. The raucous, abrasive, suicide-sampling adrenaline ride "Born Free" becomes exponentially undeniable when teamed with its controversial video that violently shows what ethnic cleansing looks like by rounding up and murdering red-haired boys. In the stomping, guitar-fueled "Meds and Feds," she renovates the techno sound of the '90s.

But it's her pop-leaning songs that stand to gain the most attention. With its Euro-electro-pop feel, "XXXO" could be a Lady Gaga hit, while the lilting, dub-tinged "It Takes a Muscle" sounds like it's one radio-friendly remix away from being a summertime hit.

However, it's the sweet "Space" that comes closest to capsulizing what M.I.A. wants "Y" to achieve: catchy music that's still thought-provoking. Hopefully, that's enough to inspire her to keep trying.

Greenberg

Available now

Ben Stiller is effective as Roger Greenberg, a 40-year-old whose life is something of a wreck, which he blames on a "bad" decision made years ago. After spending time going through psychiatric treatment, Roger leaves New York for L.A., where he bunks in with his successful brother and his family. Roger's only hope is his girlfriend Florence (Greta Gerwig), who isn't exactly stable herself. The film's strong point is Stiller, known mostly for outlandish comedies. Here he is given a more serious role and manages to pull it off. DOUG NYE, MCT

VIDEO GAME

Puzzle Quest 2

Nintendo DS, Xbox Live Download

Combining a puzzle game with a swords-and-sorcery fantasy role-playing game might sound like a peanut butter and bacon sandwich—two good things that just aren't destined to be together. But "Puzzle Quest 2" works anyway, mostly on the strength of the game's addictive puzzle part, which plays like "Bejeweled" on crack. The story feels inconsequential, but you'll be too busy figuring out which spell to use to care. RYAN SMITH FOR REDEYE

Insomnia

Al Pacino plays an LAPD detective who heads to Alaska for an investigation.

He finds sleep hard to come by because it's that time of the year when the sun shines even at midnight. This entertaining psychological thriller also stars Robin Williams (in a grim role) and Hillary Swank. DOUG NYE, MCT

SONG

Crossfire

Brandon Flowers

Remember when Brandon Flowers and The Killers were fun? When boy-friends looked like girlfriends he had in February of last year? Well, "Mr. Brightside" is solo and serious on his first single. Brendan O'Brien produced it, and it sounds like Bruce Springsteen crossed with Coldplay. It's meant to be Big and Important with a chorus of "We're caught in the crossfire of heaven and hell and we're searching for shelter." Instead, it just sounds Bland and Boring. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

DVD AND BLU-RAY

The Bounty Hunter

Available now

Jennifer Aniston is in the role of a news reporter and Gerard Butler is a bounty hunter in a film that has the actors playing a divorced couple. Oh, yes, they hate each other, and the wackiness ensues when Milo (Butler) gets to bring in Nicole (Aniston) for jumping bail. "The Bounty Hunter" is totally predictable and unoriginal. Razzies Award voters should be on high alert. GARRETT CONTI, MCT

Pardon his French

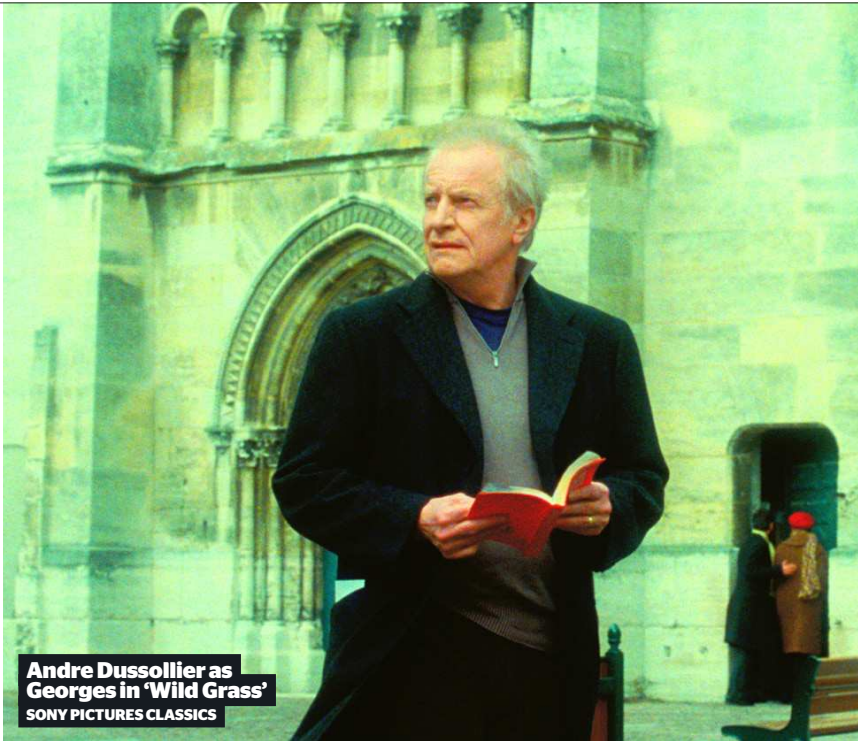

After he returns her wallet that was stolen, Georges (Andre Dussollier), who occasionally has the urge to kill, develops an obsession with Marguerite (Sabine Azema), a dentist with a red mop of hair and a pilot's license. Perhaps that's why aviation fanatic Georges can't stop thinking about her?

The buzz: 88-year-old director Alain Resnais ("Last Year at Marienbad") is an icon in French cinema, and "Wild Grass" helped earn him recognition at the Cannes Film Festival for his entire body of work. Veterans make mistakes too, however.

The verdict: "Wild Grass" quickly establishes itself as a rash, and by film's end the irritation is unbearable. The plot is a grueling stream of uncomfortable nonsense; ultimately, Marguerite is concerned for the fate of a stalker who slashed her tires, but the film trivializes and understands nothing about these people's unusual impulses. Resnais makes it all look quite pretty, but that's part of the problem as the cutesy-creepy tone ping-pongs between romantic dream and deadly noir. Meanwhile, the stupidly indecisive narration stammers and mutters but certainly doesn't prepare us for the film absurdly closing with a young girl asking her mom, "When I'm a cat, will I be able to eat cat munchies?"

When homey Ravenswood tavern Fountainhead opened earlier this year, it quickly became known for a solid collection of craft beer and whiskey. The bar's new Sunday brunch menu, launched July 4, pays similar respects to booze by dedicating half the menu space to a.m. drinking options. Chef Robyn Marfurt suitably whips up hearty dishes that will fit the bill if you had one too many the night before—at Fountainhead or elsewhere.

Hangover helpers: After a late night of cocktail-ing, we reveled in the egg-topped hash ($9), cubes of pork belly, apples, Andouille and potato all coated in zesty barbecue sauce. Phil's Hangover ($9)—a bowl of cheese fries topped with sausage gravy and sunnyside-up eggs—also is an obvious choice.

Sweet treats: For a taste of something sweet, split an order of beignets ($7) among the table. Rolled in a sugar-spice mix and served with coffee creme anglaise and homemade strawberry jam for dipping, these doughnuts are delish. The only other sweet dish on the menu is French toast with honey-laced mascarpone, rhubarb compote and peaches.

Pass on: The Tortilla ($9). This Spanish-style platter featuring a wedge of cold potato omelet with grilled chorizo, smoked manchego cheese slices and figs delivers just what it promises but may be disappointing at a table of more decadent dishes.

Is it lunchtime yet? Popular sandwiches from the regular menu (pork belly, braised pork shoulder) don't make the brunch lineup, but you will find a bacon-topped egg salad sandwich ($6) on a pretzel bun with house-made sweet potato chips.

Day drinking: Brewhounds can zero in on the Great Beers for Breakfast section for recommendations such as Meantime coffee porter ($8), Dark Horse raspberry ale ($5) or Left Hand milk stout ($5), a morning favorite of beverage director Phil Kuhl. Look to the Nap Instigators section for a lineup of unique cocktails, including Mary Had a Little Sheep ($8), a bloody mary with Sheep Dip scotch in lieu of vodka.

Buzz factor: Servers pour steaming cups of Julius Meinl coffee, and you can even order it doctored up with Finian's Irish whiskey, brown sugar and house-made whipped cream ($5). Fountainhead also shows love for down-the-street neighbor Julius Meinl by serving the cafe's cheddar-chive and bacon-chocolate scones ($3 each).

Arm yourself against pit stains

Chicago Tribune

Anyone who has worn a white shirt likely has encountered the irksome case of the stubborn yellow armpit stain.

You can beat those pesky stains. First step? Know thy enemy. The yellow stains happen when sebum, oily underarm secretions that come from the hair follicle, isn't washed out of clothing well and forms a yellow stain during the drying process, said Mike Norton, spokesman for Procter and Gamble, maker of deodorants including the Old Spice and Secret lines.

Antiperspirants can exacerbate the staining because some of their ingredients cling to fabric, providing a layer where the sebum can deposit, Norton said. So even though sebum alone can cause yellow stains, antiperspirants can make them worse.

FIGHT OFF STAINS

Opt for deodorant instead of antiperspirant. The ingredients sebum clings to are the active ingredients that make antiperspirant effective in the first place, namely aluminum salts such as aluminum zirconium tetrachlorohydrate gly. You're hard-pressed to find antiperspirants without aluminum ingredients, which prevent sweat production by clogging pores.

Deodorants, which mask smell but don't guard against wetness, generally don't contain aluminum. Deodorants can contain other ingredients that trap sebum, including waxes such as stearyl alcohol and hydrogenated castor oil, but they're typically more water soluble than antiperspirants and more easily removed.

Don't let stains set. After wearing, rinse your shirt's armpit areas in cold water before laundering.

REMOVE STAINS

The University of Illinois Extension's Stain Solutions website (web.extension.illinois.edu/stain) lists removal tips for more than 200 types of stains. Though stains that have been laundered and dried are difficult to remove, several repetitions of the following techniques might be able to conquer them, said Susan Taylor, extension educator for consumer and family economics.

To get rid of perspiration stains, soak the shirt in detergent containing enzymes (it'll say so on the label) for 10-15 minutes before laundering it according to the specified fabric instructions. If that doesn't work, pre-treat fresh stains with ammonia and old stains with white vinegar.

For deodorant and antiperspirant stains, scrape off excess material with a blunt knife before soaking the shirt for 15 minutes in a mixture of 1 quart lukewarm water, ½ teaspoon liquid hand dishwashing detergent and 1 tablespoon ammonia. Rub the fabric from the back to loosen the stain, then soak the shirt for another 15 minutes in the same mixture.

After rinsing, soak the stain in an enzyme-containing detergent for at least 30 minutes; soak aged stains for several hours. Then launder. If the color stain remains, launder using chlorine or oxygen bleach.

FOR REDYE

As tough as the warriors of the NFL gridiron are, playing only one side of the ball affords the players some time to rest. But for Chicago Rush star DeJuan Alfonso, there's no such thing as a long breather. That's because Alfonso plays football Ironman-style, meaning he lines up at wide receiver, linebacker and special teams for Chicago's Arena Football League franchise.

As the Rush geared up for Saturday's final home game of the regular season before they begin postseason play, Alfonso chatted with RedEye about playing indoors and Da Coach. RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

What's the most common misconception about Arena football?

A lot of people think it's semi-pro league, but we are professionals. We don't make the kind of dollars you see in the NFL, but we are still pros. Some people also may think we aren't as good of athletes as the NFL, but we are. A lot of us have actually spent time on NFL rosters. The talent level is actually better in some positions than the NFL.

What's it like to play both sides of the ball?

This year, the most plays I've been on the field is 70 or 80 plays out of 100. After the game, you're a little more tired, but I'm tired anyway. It's funny though, because I don't think being tackled is as taxing as tackling someone else.

Does Ironman give you any sort of advantage?

For me, it's an advantage. As a receiver, I know what I don't like a defensive back to do and the other way around. It helps me.

Any NFL players you could think of who could succeed in that kind of system?

[Bears receiver] Devin Hester would be a great Arena league player. He's already done that kind of thing before where he's played multiple roles.

What's another thing you like about Arena League?

I like that receivers can't run out of bounds. You gotta take the hit. You can't run from me. You have to be tough. You don't see guys slide in the Arena League. They're always trying to score.

Mike Ditka is the owner of the Rush. Has he given you any advice?

He's a great guy. He comes to the games and loves the game. He's told me, you know, the same thing you hear from lots of coaches—just go out and play hard. Play like it's your last game. That's what it comes down to.

“Some people also may think we aren't as good of athletes as the NFL, but we are.”

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeyechicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. “Blanks” used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 4th Edition. Falling stars

Musicians have had a hard time staying on their feet this year

Admit it: We as a society love to see people trip, fall down, bite it, eat pavement, go splat. There's a certain joy—and smugness—that comes from knowing that we, despite all our shortcomings, at least know how to walk, unlike that schmo we just passed.

That feeling is multiplied infinitely when the schmo in question is a full-blown celebrity: Carrie Bradshaw becoming “fashion roadkill” on the runway on “Sex and the City”? Priceless. Whitney Port blowing her one shot at being an actual model on “The Hills” because she couldn't maintain an upright position? Amazing.

Lately, though, it's been those in the music biz who've been tripping out, literally. Jon Bon Jovi's onstage leg cramp left him stumbling across a New Jersey stage this month, and Alicia Keys is lucky to have had her butt there to cushion her recent fall in New Orleans. It's apparently the year of musician tumbles, so let's recap the highlights. Feel free to feel smug.

QUEEN OF THE KLUTZES

Rihanna

Aw, RiRi. We get that you're trying to recast yourself as a powerful, fierce female ... but you make it hard for us to believe that when you stumble during two concerts this year, in England and France. And injure your rib in Switzerland.

FAST-THINKING KLUTZ

Alicia Keys

GOOD-TIMING KLUTZ

Brad Paisley

The country star tweeted that he fell so “freaking hard” off the stage during his encore at a March concert in Charleston, S.C., that he had to get a CT scan at a local hospital. (He's OK.) Which of his songs got him so juiced up? “Alcohol,” duh.

BOOTYLICIOUS KLUTZ

Beyonce

Performing for a bunch of sexy, party-hardy Brazilians would be intimidating for anyone, even Beyonce (above). We felt for her when she very unsexily fell onstage in Florianopolis, Brazil, in February. On the bright side, this trip was far less embarrassing than her head-first tumble down some stairs in Orlando in 2007.

GREAT ATTITUDE KLUTZ

Jon Bon Jovi

Somehow, Bon Jovi (above) managed to tear a calf muscle onstage in New Jersey, but that didn't stop him from finishing his set. USA Today reports that, stumbling, he alerted the crowd: “I got another leg. I don't need this one. ... I'm still good-lookin'!”

Interesting 'Development'

The on-again, off-again "Arrested Development" movie is back on, gq.com reports.

"Believe it or not, we have started the script," Mitch Hurwitz, creator of the cult favorite sitcom, told the magazine. Hurwitz shared a few insights into the script.

"We're changing some of the Bush references to Obama because we started it awhile ago," he told GQ. "And the Bluths may not be vacationing in the Gulf of Mexico anymore. We also might have to recast the part of Uncle Mel, the former action movie star."

Leo on the down low

Don't expect to see Leonardo DiCaprio (above) living out his relationship with super-model Bar Refaeli in the media. "I want to be an actor just like my role models," the "Inception" star told the Swiss newspaper Le Matin, according to people.com. "Robert De Niro, for example. Being discreet in his private life has allowed him to be even more credible in different roles on the big screen."

'Housewives' exports

What did Europe do to deserve this? "The Real Housewives of Athens" has begun filming in Greece, the New York Post reports. Meanwhile, casting is complete for a U.K. version of the show set in the resort of Dorset, England, with plans to expand to France, Spain, Italy, Germany and Australia. C'est la vie.

Too much Botox?

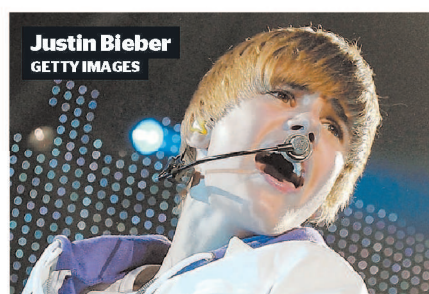

Courtney Cox has no problem with trying to slow down her aging process—as long as it's done right. "Sometimes I use Botox," the "Cougar Town" star says in the August issue of InStyle magazine. "Compared to most, I use it very sparingly. One time I did too much, though. I feel weird if I can't move my face, and that one time I overdid it, I felt trapped in my own skin."

HOT DATE

July 24

That's the date of an open casting call for NBC's "The Biggest Loser" at the NBC Tower (454 N. Columbus Drive) from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Get all of the details at thebiggestlosercasting.com.

Bieber beats Gaga

The mop-topped one has surpassed Lady Gaga for most video views on YouTube, mtv.com reports. Justin Bieber's collab with Ludacris just outpaces "Bad Romance," with both videos racking up more than 245 million views. Here are the site's Top 5 videos.

1. "Baby," Justin Bieber with Ludacris
2. "Bad Romance," Lady Gaga
3. "Party in the U.S.A.," Miley Cyrus
4. "I Know You Want Me (Calle Ocho)," Pitbull
5. "7 Things," Miley Cyrus
